ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of comparing a two-dimensional image of an object to library images of that object as seen from a variety of predetermined orientations. The method further includes a rating of the accuracy of fit of the object image to each library image to determining the overall best fit and, thus, the orientation of the object.